--A BOMB SO DEADLY IT WILL WIPE OUT THE ENTIRE POPULATION WITHIN HOURS!

LOOK AT THAT MAP, FURY! SOMEWHERE WITHIN ITS BORDERS, THERES A MADMAN, HOLDING THE LIVES OF MILLIONS IN THE PALM OF HIS HANDS!

CAN'T STOP TO EXPLAIN, T'CHALLA.

HOPE IT DOESN'T TOAST YOU, BUT I'M MELTING THESE BARS FAST--WITH MY WHOLE BODY.

THEN-- YOU KNOW EVERY-THING!?

EUROPEANS

...THOUGH, EVEN THERE, IT SEEMS I CANNOT ESCAPE... REMINDERS.

WHAT KIND OF PEOPLE LIVE ON ANOTHER CONTINENT FOR CENTURIES, AND STILL CALL THEMSELVES "EUROPEANS"?

THEY ARE SHACKLED, TORCH, NEARLY AS MUCH AS WE.

THAT'S MORE LIKE IT. NOT THAT I'D HAVE MINDED BUSTIN' DOWN THIS DOOR, BUT--

HEY! WHERE'D OL' HOT-BREATH FLY OFF TO?

IT'S NEARLY MIDNIGHT.

WHILE YOU GUYS TALK SEMANTICS, OL' BENJY COULD USE A LEG UP.

I'VE A BETTER IDEA, OLD FRIEND.

THE GOOD AND THE BAD

Dear Bullfrog,

This week, the Fantastic Four was really good. The Watcher's Sci-Fi tale was actually interesting as opposed to the very contrived feel of some of your scene-setting. Of course, this story is just to give more impact and import to the tale of the Fantastic Four, but as an individual 'history' it worked. Rather than the story being revolved all around the hero, and him being the only reason for it to take place (as in Captain Britain, where we have the hero, now we need something to happen to him), the central character, or characters, should just become involved in some happening, and play a minor or major part in it, as the fancy takes the author. This FF tale has a really comic feel, and as it is unlikely that mere humans could provide the ultimate solution to the problem, the FF should only make a contribution and not resolve the whole thing alone. The Watcher seems to have become a tongue-in-cheek character for Marvel. He's always sticking his nebulous nose into human affairs, and as earth is just one paltry planet in the Cosmos, who knows what he's been up to behind our backs?

Compared to the FF and Nick Fury, Captain Britain is almost not worth reading. The panels are all boringly the same size, the drawings undetailed, and all the other things we regularly tell you about. In fact, the only time you seem to succeed is when C.B. goes over a cliff. The sequence in ish 1 was good, and this one wasn't bad either. Doctor Synne gets cornered and more amusing every week.

Glen Dakin and Steve Way.

We knew we weren't intended to take this letter seriously, men. How did we know that? Easy. You addressed it to "Bullfrog". All part of some subtle, sophisticated humour that passes clean over our humble heads. Well, we gave you your say. (But just what WAS it you were saying?)

TALENT REQUIRED

Dear Neil,

I need some good artists and writers for a new mag of mine. I will only accept good talent. All artists and writers must be between 13 and 16 years of age.

Artists. Send me a drawing of any hero or heroine of your choice, and a large painting/drawing of a male and female face.

Writers. Send me a story (script and plot) and a character of your own invention.

Mike Moore,
51 Weston Lane, Bulkington,
Nr. Nuneaton, Warks.

With initials such as yours, Mike, you just HAD to be a Marvel Madman! There's no charge for the plug—just send us a copy of the first issue of the mag. New talent FASCINATES us.

NO GLOSS IS NO LOSS

Dear Tribe,

Your comic, Captain Britain, is very good, and I am glad to see colour and paper covers. I prefer the paper covers to glossy ones, as I think they made the cover scene more realistic. Nick Fury has been greatly improved by the colour, and I am glad to see the FF back in big panels, it was too cramped in Titans.

Michael Hanna, KOF, RFO, QNS,
FOOMER,
9 Beechmount Park,
Upper Lisburn Rd., Belfast, N. Ireland.

Frankly we're surprised at the number of Merry Marvel Madmen who prefer the soft paper covers to the glossy ones. Fact is, it's putting us into something of a dilemma. Should we stay glossy or go "C.B." on all the mags?
